

Candlelight Ceremony

A dramatic effect for a late afternoon or evening wedding is created with the flattering romantic glow of candles. Here are some ideas for making this ceremony special.

Check the site where you plan to hold the ceremony to be sure there aren't any fire regulations prohibiting candles.

Notify your florist - in addition to planning the floral arrangements, he or she will also be responsible for placing the candles in their holders. Candles should be long-burning as well as dripless.

Candles can be burning as guests arrive, lit just before the mother of the bride is seated or lit by honored guests or an usher during the ceremony.
